

WELCOME TO CLASS!

Practice Mixed Conditionals

Cartas al azar
Mixed conditionals
speaking scenarios

Reparte tarjetas
al azar de un
mazo barajado.

Con tecnología de Wordwall

The image shows a digital interface for a Wordwall activity. It has a black background with white text. At the top, it says 'Cartas al azar' (Random cards), 'Mixed conditionals', and 'speaking scenarios'. In the center is a blue button with a white play icon and the word 'INICIAR' (Start). Below the button, it says 'Reparte tarjetas al azar de un mazo barajado.' (Deal random cards from a shuffled deck). At the bottom, it says 'Con tecnología de Wordwall' (With Wordwall technology). There are also small icons for volume and full screen in the bottom right corner.

What if...

- a. Each team will receive a “what if” situation.
- b. You have 10 minutes to write a “chain” of consequences in that scenario.

Example: If people could fly, we would not have invented planes. If we didn't have planes, people would not have died in plane crashes. If people hadn't died in, they would be more people in the world. If there were....

What if...

In pairs or groups of three: Choose one of these scenarios and brainstorm ideas (at least 4) of how the present and the past would be different (think of it using the mixed conditionals)

Scenario A: "What if animals could talk?"

Scenario B: "What if humans were unable to lie?"

Scenario C: "What if the industrial revolution had never happened?"

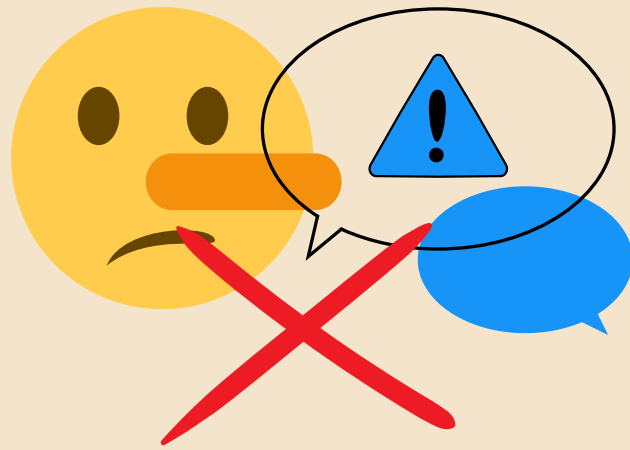

Scenario D: "What if trees grew gold coins instead of leaves?"

What if...

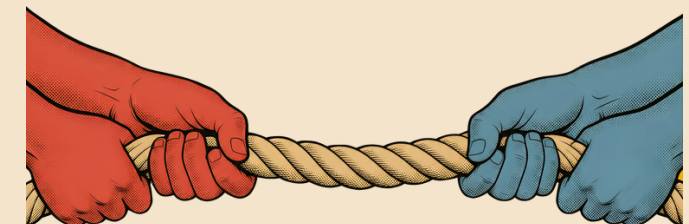

Think of elements that can represent that past and present situation or change.

EXAMPLE:

If people couldn't lie, everyone would have developed more empathy.

If people had developed more empathy, there would be less wars.

What if...

Create a collage using canva/powerpoint/other programs for your idea.

Requirement: The collage must visually represent both a past and a present effect.

Mixed 1: how a past action affects the present

Mixed 2: how a present situation affects the past.

What if...

Use the mixed conditionals to explain the scenario portrayed in your collage.

"In this collage, I represented what would have happened, if we were..."

"If this had happened, we would be..."

